Extreme Makeover to feature haunted Mounds Theatre on Halloween
by Racann Ruth

A haunted house was the top destination of choice for 200 visiting students from the Oregon School for the Deaf in September. And since the Mounds Theatre is reputed to be home to a number of ghosts, that’s where they went when “Extreme Makeover: Home Edition” visited the Twin Cities. The students, from the Oregon School for the Deaf in Salem, along with their families and faculty members, were special guests of the Starkey Hearing Foundation, based in Eden Prairie.

The Halloween edition of Extreme Makeover, Home Edition, will air locally on ABC stations at 7:00 pm, Sunday, October 31.

For the rest of us, the Mounds Theatre is hosting “Real Haunted Tours” each Friday, Saturday and Sunday in October. For more information or to book a tour visit www.RealHauntedTours.com. See page 2 of this issue for information on other upcoming Mounds Theatre events.

Racann Ruth is the director of Portage for Youth based at the Mounds Theatre.

Book readings ahead by Carla Richle, Forum editor

Two book readings are scheduled for October and November that should pique the interest of readers.

At 6:30 pm, on Tuesday, October 5, Pulitzer Prize nominee Alison McGhee will read from her books and lead a discussion at Twin Cities Academy, 835 East 5th Street, next to Sacred Heart church.

McGhee is a well-known writer of children’s, as well as adult, books and is also a professor at Metropolitan State University. One of her best known novels is the award-winning Shadow Baby, about an 11-year-old girl on a journey of discovery of her own family’s hidden past as well that of her elderly neighbor. Other works include poetry and many books for young children.

Most of her books are available through the public library system if you’d like to read up before her appearance. The Dayton’s Bluff district council is cosponsoring the reading along with Twin Cities Academy.

Then, on Wednesday, November 3, at 6:30 pm, LiCho Xenexai will read from and discuss Memoirs of a Fish, an autobiography about his journey from the war-torn areas of Southeast Asia to St. Paul.

LiCho Xenexai is the director of Hong Youth Educational Services at the Margaret Recreation Center. The reading will take place at the district council office, 798 East 7th Street.

The show customarily sends the recipients of the makeover on a vacation while local developers and volunteers complete the building project. It made sense to producers to bring the students to Minnesota, where they could address hearing issues with maximum resources at their disposal.

On Monday, October 18, the Dayton’s Bluff Community Council celebrated the graduation of the 2010 microentrepreneur class at ceremony held on September 15. MOUNDS THEATRE PLAYS TO FEATURE DINNER THEATER AND COMEDY

by Raeann Ruth

“A Christmas Story”

The Historic Mounds Theatre is proud to present “A Christmas Story,” the classic film brought to life on stage for the seventh year.

Humorist Jean Shepherd’s memoir of growing up in the midwest in the 1940s followed 9-year-old Ralphie Parker in his quest to get a genuine Red Ryder BB gun under the tree for Christmas. Ralphie pleads his case before his mother, his teacher and even Santa Claus himself, at Goldblum’s department store, with the same and always consistent response: “You’ll shoot your eye out, kid.”

Show times are December 3, 4, 10, 11, 17 and 18 at 7:00 pm and December 5, 12 and 19 at 2:00 pm. Ticket prices are $15.00 for adults, $10.00 for students and seniors and $5.00 for children 12 and under. Tickets can be ordered in advance at www.moundstheatre.org or 651-772-8674. Purchase tickets early as they sell out very quickly.

“A Christmas Story” is not only a wonderful play for the whole family, but proceeds from the production go to support the Historic Mounds Theatre, assuring additional quality productions in the future.

A season of dinner theater

Building on the success of its dinner theater production “Knotareel Getaway Cruise” in February, the Mounds Theatre has scheduled a full season of dinner theater shows including a new series of musical comedies, “The Bait Shop Trilogy,” which is sure to track down and locate even the most elusive fans of the classic film brought to life on stage for the seventh year.

“A Christmas Story” is not only a wonderful play for the whole family, but proceeds from the production go to support the Historic Mounds Theatre, assuring additional quality productions in the future.

The bike classic on September 12 is history but what a great day it was! About 6,500 riders enjoyed perfect weather, great food, fabulous entertainment and of course a beautiful ride through beautiful Saint Paul and lovely Lilydale Regional Park. Thank you to the many riders and volunteers who helped to make the day a success! Check back at the website soon for the 2010 photo gallery. We are already looking for words to next year! Details and the date of the 2011 Saint Paul Classic will be released soon! Thank you again for your support of the Classic and the Bicycle Alliance of Minnesota. Together we will do great things for cycling in Minnesota!

Students of color are invited to the Gates Page scholarship night at Metropolitan State to learn about useful information from college admission and financial aid people, current college students and parents.

There will be opportunities to talk with representatives from several private and public colleges, tour Metropolitan State’s campus and get specific information about scholarships from Gates Millennium Scholars and the Page Education Foundation.

Families with children of all ages are welcome. This event is free of charge.

 وضع اليد على المولدات

By Meg Gronau

Roll out the red carpet—er . . . play rug—for the new babies at the Dayton’s Bluff Early Childhood and Family Education (ECFE) program.

This fall, for the first time, the ECFE program at Dayton’s Bluff Elementary School will offer a “birth-to-five-year-olds” class specifically for caregivers of little bundles of joy under six months old. The bundles themselves, of course, are welcome, too.

ECFE is a program for the parents, grandparents, and caregivers of children from birth through kindergarten age. Because parents are their children’s most-and most-significant teachers, ECFE was established to help build healthy families and to ensure that all children are ready for kindergarten.

When ECFE launched in Minnesota over 35 years ago, the Dayton’s Bluff site was one of five flagship sites. To this day, Dayton’s Bluff remains one of the most-central sites in the city, with a vibrant and diverse population, well-loved staff and curriculum, and a passionate parent advisory council.

In the past, Dayton’s Bluff has offered birth-to-five-year-olds ECFE classes in English and Spanish, and age-specific classes for parents of three-to-five-year-olds. In 2010, as a response to the need for more age-specific infant classes, Dayton’s Bluff has been chosen as the East Side location for the new infant class, which began in September and will be held Monday afternoons from 3:00 pm to 4:30 pm.

In a typical “birth-to-five-years” ECFE class, children separate from their parents after the first 30-45 minutes of class. But in this new infants’ class, parents will stay with their babies for the full class time, with gradual separation beginning in the second semester. While Dayton’s Bluff ECFE has always welcomed infants’ caregivers, the new age-specific class poses some new excitement for the staff. Finger plays, songs and parent-child playtime opportunities will all be used as parents learn to interact with their little ones.

New parents—because even parents with several older children are still “new” to parenting this new baby—can feel overwhelmed working to meet the needs of an infant.

Brent Davies, Dayton’s Bluff ECFE’s English-speaking Parent Educator, is ready to help parents ease into their new role as their baby’s first and best teacher. “Being in a room full of new parents and babies who might be crying, fussing, cooing or ‘making raspberries’ gives a parent comfort that they are not alone and that much of this new experience is wonderful and normal!” Davies notes.

ECFE hopes to prevent the isolation that parents can feel when a newborn arrives, by offering parents a forum for hashing over hot-button topics such as feeding, sleeping and crying. ECFE also provides a built-in support network of parents in similar situations.

“Many ECFE parents attest to the relationships built while talking, laughing and crying over the ups and downs of child rearing.”

“E CF E hopes to prevent the isolation that parents can feel when a newborn arrives, by offering parents a forum for hashing over hot-button topics such as feeding, sleeping and crying. ECFE also provides a built-in support network of parents in similar situations. “Many ECFE parents attest to the relationships built while talking, laughing and crying over the ups and downs of child rearing.”

“The parents all are very supportive and have great respect for each other’s opinion,” says Chae Thao, who has seven children and attended Dayton’s Bluff ECFE for the first time this year. “We’ve made lifelong friends in this room, says Julia Hobday, sweeping her arm around the parents’ room. Hobday is a Dayton’s Bluff resident and mother of four, and has been attending Dayton’s Bluff ECFE for five years.

The new infant class will also include discussions about reading your baby’s cues, information on infant development, and resources for new parents and ideas for having fun with your baby. Davies hopes that current ECFE parents and graduates, as well as the Dayton’s Bluff community, will help spread the word about the new infant class offering.

2010-11 St. Paul ECFE catalogs are now available in libraries and rec centers across the city. For more information, please call Dayton’s Bluff ECFE at 651-293-5434.

Minnesota is the only state in the union offering an ECFE program. It is mainly funded through the St. Paul school system’s community education program. There is a sliding-fee scale for participants; however, no family is ever turned away due to an inability to pay. Most ECFE classes meet once a week and include parent-child interaction, a wide variety of children’s activities and parent-child discussion group time. While ECFE’s focus is on the caregivers of young children, as those children grow, their families’ experience sets the stage for parental involvement and children’s success in K-12 education. ECFE works to strengthen families and engage the ability of all parents to provide the best possible environment for the healthy development of their children.

Meg Gronau is a member of the Dayton’s Bluff ECFE Advisory Council.

It takes place on Thursday, October 21, from 5:00 pm to 7:30 pm, at Metropolitan State University Great Hall, 700 East 7th Street.

For more information visit www.mnmet.edu/gates_events.html or contact Amanda at 651-645-7404 ext 204.
Many community-minded donors fund Metropolitan State student scholarships
by Harvey Meyer

As a higher education institution dedicated to serving the community, perhaps it’s not surprising that many of the privately funded scholarships at Metropolitan State University emanate from community-minded donors.

There’s the oldest scholarship, the Reatha Clark King Endowed Scholarship Fund, named after the university’s second president. The 33-year-old scholarship, like other privately funded ones, is administered by the Metropolitan State University Foundation. It is aimed at students who are economically challenged.

There’s the most popular scholarship, the Kopp Presidential Fund. Established in 1996, the merit-based scholarship is named after Lee Kopp, CEO of Kopp Investment Advisors.

And there’s the Karl Neid Endowed Scholarship Fund, which is awarded to persons who live on the East Side or graduated from an East Side high school. Family, friends and associates created the scholarship in 1995 in honor of the deceased Neid, a long-time passionate advocate for improving the quality of life on the East Side.

“Our foundation scholarships are different from those administered at most traditional universities,” said Debra Vos, foundation associate director. “In part that’s because Metropolitan State has more nontraditional students. The average age of our students is about 32, and most work while attending school and taking care of family obligations.

“The scholarships are also different in that we really take the time to get to know the students and what they truly need to help them get through college. It’s a very personalized approach, which is sort of reflective of the way Metropolitan State operates. The money may go toward tuition and books, the mortgage, a car payment, child care or other immediate needs. Where possible, we want to help ease the financial burden of students so they can concentrate more on their studies.”

Since 1987, more than $2.5 million has been raised for private scholarships at Metropolitan State. The foundation has awarded more than $1 million of those funds; 450 donors have contributed to scholarships over the years.

Nearly $200,000 was awarded to 111 students in this year alone, a significant hike over 2009. In part, the boost in scholarships awarded reflects attempts to assist more students during a depressed economy.

Courtney Brown, who received three scholarships for this academic year, is deeply appreciative of the funds.

“I’m extremely grateful,” said Brown, 40, a senior majoring in law enforcement who is a single father with two young children. “Without these scholarships, I really don’t know how I’d fund my education. They help ease my mind and allow me to focus on my studying and getting good grades.”

When the opportunity arises, Brown, who works full-time, said he intends to fund a scholarship of his own as a way of giving back to the community.

Mikie visits 4th and Bates

Mikie, a macaque monkey, has been a member of the Roy Carlson family for over 13 years. The two can often be seen taking their regular constitutional around Lake Phalen.

On September 10, Roy, the owner of Budget Towing, brought Mikie to meet the kids who participate in Sage Holben’s Friday night movies-on-the-porch at 4th and Bates. Each of Mikee’s admirers received one of Roy’s special buttons with a photo of Mikie’s face. They discovered, though, that Mikie gets alarmed if he can’t see a readily available escape route, which meant that introductions had to be made from the middle of the street, to the surprise of the drivers who had to maneuver around them. State law no longer allows monkey as pets. Mikie was grandfathered in under the old law.

Home Energy Squads
by Mary Morse

Director of Development and Communication at the NEC

Energy bills too high? Hot air (or chilly wind) coming in that leaky front door? Good news! The Home Energy Squads are coming to Dayton’s Bluff to help you lower those bills and to make your home more comfortable in just one visit. Home Energy Squads are a program brought to you by Xcel Energy and the St. Paul based nonprofit Neighborhood Energy Connection (NEC).

In addition to workshops being held across the city, you can sign up for the squads to come to your home. Two to three skilled professionals will install energy-saving measures that start lowering your energy bills as soon as they are in place. The squads can properly weather strip or air seal your exterior doors. They can install water heater blankets, energy efficient compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFLs), and water-saving showerheads and aerators for your faucets. They can even install a programmable thermostat and tailor it to your schedule and comfort level. You can participate in the Home Energy Squad program for as little as $30. If you qualify for Energy Assistance, the visit is completely free.

For more information about the NEC or Home Energy Squads, please see www.thenece.org. To set an appointment, call 651-328-6220. The NEC’s Home Energy Squads speak Spanish and Hmong.

The Dayton’s Bluff Community Council is promoting home energy conservation in our neighborhood with a grant from the City of St. Paul, funded by the US Department of Energy through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA).
Dayton’s Bluff in the post World War Two Era
by Steve Trimble
After World War II, the demographic of Dayton’s Bluff were shifting. The neighborhood was losing much of its former middle class base. The population was declining and aging. As automobile ownership increased, the local business community was affected. Increasingly, people would jump into their cars to go to one of the outlying shopping areas rather than make purchases in the local community. People began shopping at the larger and cheaper “cash-and-carry” grocery stores.

Many of the small businesses successfully kept up with the changing times. For instance, people were invited to Tower Radio and Electric Store on East 7th Street in the winter of 1948 to watch the new technology of television. “This marks the beginning of a new era in Minnesota,” the neighborhood paper declared. One of the workers at the establishment had built a television set on his own. A few weeks later Waldo Nelson’s bar was attracting patrons because it now had a TV. They were able to pick up the stations’ test broadcasts every afternoon between three and four o’clock. Herrmann’s department store at 7th and Fauquier streets also had a set on display.

Many writers say the 1950s was a time “when youth culture was starting to develop.” There is some evidence that this was true in Dayton’s Bluff. Some of the students wanted things to change. For instance, in 1946 Harding’s Junior Prom Committee placed an editorial in the school paper urging the principal to change the rules covering dances. They believed that “this has grown from our annual hatchet trophy. And the winner took home the coveted hatchet trophy.”

One thing that didn’t change was the neighborhood’s interest in school sports.

Jive Hive at Harding
Two years later the students were instituting rules of their own for their hang out—the “Jive Hive”. Located inside the school. Now people who came were going to have to wear buttons. In addition no one under the influence of alcohol would be admitted; there would be no smoking, but it would be all right to bring outside guests if they were signed in. Did any of our readers ever go to an event at the Jive Hive?

Music was on the minds of teenagers at the time and the platters being played had started to change in the era. The Harding school newspaper took a “rock and roll poll” in the mid-fifties and found that of the favorite songs among students, rock was the runaway favorite, and only one ballad was chosen. The favorite by far was “Heartbreak Hotel,” by Elvis Presley. “Why Do Fools Fall in love” came in second.

Student interests at Harding High School returned to social and academic focus after the war. There were still many clubs, but in 1947 they tended to be more academic or social service oriented. Harding’s organizations included the National Honor Society, Mummers, Scrubblers, German Club, Spanish Club, Latin Club, Science Club, Band, Y-Teens, Hi-Y and Library Club.

After the war, young women at Harding would often be fanned into classes thought to be suited to the female roles. As an example, the 1949 school yearbook included the following caption under a photo: “Amidst mixing bowls, spoons, tape measures, needles and threads, the girls of Harding’s chapter of the Future Home Makers of America have found time to put together a centennial cookbook . . . put on teas, and keep up with club work.”

One thing that didn’t change was the neighborhood’s interest in school sports.

Wanted: Volunteers to help improve reading skills
Reading Corps is a program that is helping close the achievement gap in St. Paul schools! Volunteer tutors work with a child one-on-one for at least one hour a week (Monday-Thursday) with resources, training and support provided by ESLC. If you can read, write, and speak English, love working with children, and can commit to one hour per week for a semester, then you can tutor. For an application and more information, email krista.eichhorst@spps.org or call 651-793-7331.

Krista Eichhorst is Coordinator of Volunteers at the East Side Learning Center at editor@daytonsbuff.org or call 651-772-2075. ¿Interesado en ser un periodista de la comunidad? ¿Por qué no contribuir al Foro? Si usted tiene una idea para un cuento o un foto, por favor contacte al editor en 651-772-2075 o editor@daytonsbuff.org.
Police community meetings

The Eastern District Police hosts its monthly meetings for community members at 722 Payne Avenue at the corner of Minnehaha Avenue. The next meetings are on Friday October 15 at 9:30 am and Wednesday, October 20 at 6:30 pm. The meetings are intended to listen to and address concerns about crime and other issues on the East Side.

Take-a-Hike October 2

Take-a-Hike occurs on the first Saturday of most months. The next hike will be Saturday, October 2. Hikers meet at 10:30 am in Indian Mounds Park at Earl Street and Mounds Boulevard.

The route winds through local parks and trails to end up at the new East Side Heritage Park. Along the way hikers will share stories and learn some of the local history. The hike is about four miles long with some moderately rough terrain. Transportation will be available to return to Indian Mounds Park, if needed.

Small business classes

The Dayton’s Bluff Neighborhood Microenterprise Program is taking applications for the spring 2011 class. Meanwhile, the fall class is underway.

The program helps start-up and young businesses on the East Side. All East Side entrepreneurs are welcome. The Dayton’s Bluff Community Council and the Neighborhood Development Center have been hosting two such microenterprise classes each year since 1993.

The spring 2010 class had its graduation ceremony on September 15 (picture on page 1).

Classroom training lasts eight weeks and includes topics such as operations management, marketing, financial management, how to create a successful business and how to prepare a business plan. In addition, each student will have eight hours of one-on-one time with the instructor to work on individual business concepts. Those who successfully complete the course and locate their businesses in target neighborhoods are eligible for ongoing business support services.

Some examples of businesses started by people who have previously taken the course include graphic artists, landscaping, photography, food service, restoration of wood furniture and works of art, custom floral design for weddings and events, and exterior and interior painting.

The registration fee is based on a sliding scale. The next session will start in April. Class size is limited, so do not wait to apply. For an application, call Karin at 651-772-2075 or email Karin@DaytonsBluff.org.

Neighborhood clean-up over for another year

The annual Dayton’s Bluff Neighborhood Clean Up was held on September 11. The clean-up gives neighbors the opportunity to bring broken and unneeded furniture and other household materials to Ray And-sen and Sons Dumpster Box Services.

Tons of trash are removed from houses and yards every year at the clean-up. A by-product of the event is the popular reuse area for items that are still usable and are claimed by others as new treasures. Some of the finds this year included a lawn mower, antique toboggan, a storm door, and boxes of books.

The sponsors would like to thank all of the volunteers who helped, as well as special thank yous to the Holiday Station Store on East Minnehaha Avenue, Calver’s, Rainbow Foods on Arcade Street and Cub Foods on Clarence Street for donating food for the volunteers. The clean-up is co-sponsored by the City of St. Paul, Dayton’s Bluff Community Council, and Eureka Recycling.

What’s happening at district council board meetings?

By Jean Comstock, board secretary

Highlights of the September 13 meeting board

The following informational reports were given:

• City Planner Alan Lovejoy gave an update on proposed zoning ordinances for Holman Field;
• District councilor Diane Wanner reported on upcoming workshops;
• The executive committee recommended adoption of a workplan the executive director has been preparing. Members were asked to review the plan and be prepared to vote at the next board meeting.

The board voted to support the zoning board on the decision regarding the billboard on Euclid Street.

This summary is an official record of board actions. These are reflected in the board minutes.

Block club meetings

Wilson Avenue Block Club meets online. Contact karin@daytonsbluff.org to join the group.

E-democracy in action

by Paul Godfread

Dayton’s Bluff has its own online town hall. E-Democracy is a web site created in 1994 to facilitate public discussion and debate on topics such as community life, crime, schools, transit and any other topic that is of interest to neighbors. It operates as a nonprofit with the goal of empowering more people to improve their own cities. I recently volunteered to moderate the Dayton’s Bluff forum and I’m asking neighbors to join in.

Upcoming regular meetings at the Dayton’s Bluff
District 4 Community Council office

Community meeting

The next Dayton’s Bluff Community Meeting is Thursday, October 7, from 6:30 to 8:00 pm at the Dayton’s Bluff Community Council, 798 East 7th Street. The council holds a community meeting on the first Thursday of most months to work on community issues and let neighbors know about upcoming events.

Police and/or code enforcement of-cers are usually present at the meetings. Bring addresses where problems are occurring and they will check them out. If the addresses are sent to the council offices ahead of time, they can research the issue before the meeting. All Dayton’s Bluff residents are welcome to attend.

At the last community meeting on September 2, about 15 people were in attendance. Police officers were there to answer questions about cars without front license plates, vacant properties that had been broken into and possible drug trafficking. Karin DuPaul took information about code issues to fortward to the city Information and Complain office.

Complaints can also be made by calling 651-266-8989 or online at http://www.stpaul.gov/index.aspx?i

Council board of directors meetings

The Dayton’s Bluff District 4 Community Council is changing its regular meeting times from the second and third Mondays of the month to the first and third Mondays. The council has also decided to eliminate the “Housing and Economic Development” and “Non-profit” designations for the meetings although it will continue, where feasible, to schedule land use matters for the second meeting of the month.

This month’s meetings will be held on Monday, October 4 and 18, with the board meetings at 7:00 pm preceded at 6:00 by the greenpeace committee on the 4th. The arts and culture committee usually scheduled before the second monthly board meeting will be rescheduled due to the annual meeting and potluck diner on October 18. See page 8 for more information.
The Dayton’s Bluff Business Association (DBBA) held its first business fair on Tuesday, September 14, at the Mounds Theatre. “Keys to the Community” attracted about 160 people according to DBBA membership coordinator Tabitha Benci DeRango. Of the 40 current members of the association, 25 had booths at the event. An assortment of 50 some raffle prizes, including a half hour massage, flowers, karate lessons and various gift baskets, was also undoubtedly part of the attraction.

Sidewalk musicians and a visit from one of the St. Paul Fire Department’s hook-and-ladder rigs added to the festive atmosphere. Since its establishment early this year, the association has grown dramatically as small and home businesses see the advantages of joining forces to exchange ideas, forward leads and get the word out about their enterprises. Membership in the DBBA is $50 yearly. The organization holds monthly meetings, usually the third or fourth Tuesday of the month. Call DBBA president Susan Tietjen if you are interested in joining or would like more information. She can be reached at 651-214-8088. Check the DBBA link at www.dayton bluff.org to see a list of the current membership.

Future editions of the Forum will profile members of the DBBA to showcase the multitude of talents and specialties available in your neighborhood.
Porch life
by Sage Holben

I accept each new day of September as a gift of one more day of neighborhood activity; a promise of neighborhood connectivity. Truthfully, I am not looking forward to winter. It’s not the snow, the horrendous heating bills, or the icy sidewalks making the 4th to 7th Street walk a treacherous one. As October approaches, darkness descends too early in the evening and even our corner porch catches the chillier air. With no warm gathering place to just hang out, our casual drop-in relationships become at least somewhat suspended until spring. Early last spring a younger neighbor and I wondered if our neighbor kids would return – almost like birds or butterflies migrating – or would they have grown away from wanting to be around “older” people. We were thrilled when they returned for visits.

Weekend movies on the porch have been a large focus over the last two summers. They’ve become much more than simply a movie night. Kids often start asking on Monday, “Are we having a movie this week?” I’ve found that they are the better selectors of movies than I am, so I largely leave it with them to select and negotiate. Bantering mingles with calling dibs on a favorite seat; serious conversation sometimes occurs during “glitch fixes” of the DVD player or projector, checked out from my workplace. Conversation might drift from violence in school, local theft, social behavior, sex education in school, to medical or homeless issues. These topics come from the kids, eight to 14 years old.

Interestingly, what has evolved is that besides a group of kids actually watching a movie, a growing group of preteen to young teens gathers on the edge of the porch or in the yard itself. The movie is of no apparent interest. Occasionally, two or three will leave to race down Bates, then return. I suppose it’s no different than my enjoying time at a coffee shop – just being in a comfortable place to chat, with no planned activity, just be.

At one girl’s suggestion, we kept a notebook on the porch so people could write messages throughout the week. Occasionally I’ll find that an unknown someone has dropped off boxes of crayons, children’s books, or flower bulbs for the garden. The porch has become a place where we celebrate any occasion and sometimes it’s simply a steamy summer day when everyone creatively digs into a juicy, sweet watermelon. Makings for root beer floats emerge from several homes. Someone will have ice cream and another will bring root beer. Someone else will bring crunchy snacks or Kari will bring “sugar” carrots.

Someone will come and ask to play a board game, and then two other children come. Sometimes they are children I’ve never actually met. Several weeks ago I learned that the boy playing Scrabble with me was the same one who has made life hell for a neighbor two blocks over. But I’m seeing another side to him . . . and that’s a greater possibility. I’ve learned so much from my neighborhood. One lesson is that it’s not really about movies or the porch. We neighbors, of all ages and backgrounds, have learned how much we all mean in each other’s lives.

Free after school program
by Ed Lambert

District council executive director
The St. Paul Parks and Recreation Department kicks off another school year by offering area youth unique opportunities to enjoy safe, positive, and engaging activities through the Rec Check Initiative.

Rec Check is a free after-school program that will be offered at 14 recreation centers, during the 2010-11 school year, for children in grades 1-6, including the Dayton’s Bluff Recreation Center at 900 Conway Street.

The program provides a variety of supervised activities such as homework help, art, reading, and special events. In addition to the learning opportunities, the program also offers plenty of opportunities to “play” by participating in physical activities and enjoying a healthy daily snack. Rec Check is held Monday through Friday, 3-6pm, from September 13 to June 14, 2011, when the St. Paul Public Schools are in session.

A change in state law now allows the Saint Paul School District to transport children to Rec Check programs, providing that the center is within the school attendance or transportation area, and is located over one mile walking distance from the school. All children attending the program are required to check in and out with staff.

The program is part of the mayor’s “Second Shift Initiative” and is a partnership between the city and the school district to extend the learning day for St. Paul youth. Contact Gina Stokes, gina.stokes@ci.stpaul.mn.us or call 651-793-3885 (afternoons on weekdays) for more information. Registration remains open so contact her soon.

The mystery object in last month’s Forum was correctly identified by Christi Saari as the front window in the building formerly housing Arlene’s hair salon at 1075 Hudson Road.

If you know the location of this month’s mystery object, email karin@daytonsunbluff.org or call 651-772-2075. The name of the first person with the correct answer will be printed in next month’s Forum.

Monday, October 18: vote for district council board of directors

Stay for annual meeting and potluck

The election for the Dayton’s Bluff District 4 Community Council board of directors will be held on Monday, October 18. Polls are open from 9:00 am until 7:00 pm at 798 East 7th Street. Any Dayton’s Bluff resident age 18 or over may vote. Voters may choose two representatives for the subdistrict where they reside and one for an at-large seat. Write-in candidates are also permitted. The map below shows the layout of the subdistricts.

The board of directors has 18 members of whom 16 are representatives of the four subdistricts and two are at-large positions. Subdistrict representatives must reside in the subdistrict, while at-large members may be either a resident of Dayton’s Bluff, an owner or operator of a Dayton’s Bluff business or organization or a property owner in Dayton’s Bluff. Nine of the 18 members are elected each year for two-year terms.

Absentee ballots are available if requests are made at least 10 days prior to the election, in writing, and signed by the voter. Ballots will be mailed to the voter at least seven days before the election and must be received back in the council office by October 18.

Election day is also the time of the district council’s annual meeting, with a potluck supper, beginning at 6:00 p.m. Bring a dish to share and stay for the meeting and the results of the election. This year, meeting attendees will hear a state of the district address by City Council president Kathy Lantry.

The candidates for the board of directors as of the close of filing on September 20 are as follows: at-large, Giovanna Salerno; Subdistrict A, Chris Newton, Daniel Stahley; Subdistrict B, Jean Comstock, Cheryl Kenney; Subdistrict C, Richard Bold, Tabitha Benci DeRango; Subdistrict D, Jacob Dorer, Avinash Viswanathan.

What a Pet! Shear Elegance Pet Grooming

by June Bennett

District council administrative assistant

“Grooming your dog makes for a beautiful and wonderful pet that really appreciates its owner.”

This advice comes from Deb Welage, owner of Shear Elegance Pet Grooming establishment. Deb has been grooming dogs for over 13 years and loves every bit of it. That special affection for dogs is shared by husband Michael and son Aaron, 19.

Deb’s first shop was in Mound for 13 years; she relocated the business to the East Side three years ago. A graduate of Cutting Edge Dog Grooming school in Crystal, she loves art as well as dogs and has managed to combine the two together in her shop.

Deb can now accommodate five to eight dogs a day and she is open seven days a week from 9:00 am to 7:00 pm. She has a medical background, which helps her advise clients as a supplement to their visits to the vet.

Deb says, “When your dog is home with you, it’s your baby but when they are with me, they are my babies.” Her shop will not only groom your dog but will also groom the owners. She hopes to add another service soon where she will come to your home and pick up your dog and groom it for you.

So if you are in the neighborhood and decide that your dog is in need of that special TLC—nail clipping or a good bath and brushing—stop in at Shear Elegance located at 393 Ruth Street, St Paul. The shop can be reached at 651-528-1157.

A healthy and good dog wags its tail with its heart.
