We are still going forward. We have to let people know that their hate towards others will not be tolerated, that it is inexcusable and an instance of racial bias in our community. But we must join together to educate and report crimes of discrimination and bias. I recognize that we cannot stop every crime of property damage motivated by bias. Another important component of the orientation is to vividly define, it will be difficult to recognize and respond to crimes against our neighbors. Passing SF 4332 is a step in the right direction. It defines what a hate crime is more clearly as harassment related to COVID-19 on the new helpline. The helpline must provide culturally sensitive outreach, community building, and offer language interpreters for languages spoken in Minnesota. We need the engagement of the community to mitigate this. We can do this through a media campaign and outreach through television, internet, radio and print to educate the public on unjustifiable bias, hate and harassment related to COVID-19 and the availability of the toll-free hotline.

Next, we need a clear definition of hate crimes in statute. If hate crimes are not clearly defined, it will be difficult to recognize and respond to crimes against our neighbors. Passed SF 4332 is a step in the right direction. It defines what a hate crime is more clearly as crimes motivated by the victim's actual or perceived race, religion, national origin, sex, age, disability, or characteristics identified as sexual orientation and expands the reporting of crimes motivated by bias. It amends the crime of property damage motivated by bias. Another important component of the legislation requires police officers be trained in recognizing, responding to, and reporting crimes of discrimination and bias. I recognize that we cannot stop every instance of racial bias in our community. But we must join together to educate people that their hate towards others will not be tolerated, that it is inexcusable and unfair.

Sen. Foung Hawj Pushes for Additional Anti-Discrimination Policies

Jackie Wegleitner
Minnesota State Senate

Foung Hawj has been an outspoken advocate to find ways to address the rising reports of discrimination against Minnesota’s Asian American community. Legislation is currently under discussion, and today the Walz administration launched a Discrimination Helpline to allow those who experience or witness discrimination to report incidents to the Minnesota Department of Human Rights. The toll-free helpline is 1-833-454-0148 or citizens can submit this online form.

Translation/interpretation services are available and the phones will be staffed Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Senator Foung Hawj released the statement below in response to the discrimination helpline:

“The wave of anti-Asian racism that looms in response to the global coronavirus pandemic is unwarranted and frightening. Although the helpline is one step we can take to report racial bias, reporting just isn’t enough. We need to do more to protect every person in this state regardless of their race, culture and religion. Minnesota can do better.

We can pass strong measures legislatively by providing $250,000 in funding to provide support when a person reports an incident of crimes of bias, hate, and harassment related to COVID-19 on the new helpline. The helpline must provide culturally sensitive outreach, community building, and offer language interpreters for languages spoken in Minnesota. We need the engagement of the community to mitigate this. We can do this through a media campaign and outreach through television, internet, radio and print to educate the public on unjustifiable bias, hate and harassment related to COVID-19 and the availability of the toll-free hotline.

Next, we need a clear definition of hate crimes in statute. If hate crimes are not clearly defined, it will be difficult to recognize and respond to crimes against our neighbors. Passing SF 4332 is a step in the right direction. It defines what a hate crime is more clearly as crimes motivated by the victim’s actual or perceived race, religion, national origin, sex, age, disability, or characteristics identified as sexual orientation and expands the reporting of crimes motivated by bias. I recognize that we cannot stop every instance of racial bias in our community. But we must join together to educate people that their hate towards others will not be tolerated, that it is inexcusable and unfair.”

Ramsey County seeks donations of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE)

John Siqveland
Ramsey County

Ramsey County has established a drop-off site to accept requested donations for Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) for staff who work on the front lines responding to COVID-19. The following items are requested in unused (sealed or open) condition: N95 respirator masks, medical, surgical or industry face masks, tie-in-back gowns, face shields, surgical gloves (nitrile or vinyl), cloth face coverings (homemade face masks).

Donations of any homemade face coverings should accord with current guidance from the Minnesota Department of Health. Donations will be used by staff in Public Health, Social Services, Correctional Health and other areas that work directly with the public and with vulnerable populations in particular. The donations will supplement the county’s existing supplies which are limited.

“We are so grateful to the residents, businesses and neighbors throughout our communities who continue asking how they can help one another,” said County Manager Ryan O’Conor. “These donations help our professionals help those who are experiencing a time of greatest need during this public health crisis that is unprecedented in our lifetimes.”

The drop-off site is located on the county’s Public Works campus at: 1425 Paul Kirkwood Drive, Arden Hills, MN 55112

Roadway signs direct donors from Highway 96 directly to the large donation box. The site is under 24-hour surveillance and staff will retrieve items through the day from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. which is when drop-offs are preferred. Organizations that may have the ability to provide larger donations of items should call 651-266-2171 to make special arrangements.

Food Carry Out

Here I am again, attempting to keep readers informed about the neighborhood and environs. Not too much to report about new restaurants maybe because of fears of the coronavirus. The North Star Bar at 883 Payne Avenue is not yet open even though they were supposed to have had a grand opening in March. Further up Payne, Lila at 1110 has a nice storefront but is currently empty. Obb’s has recently begun takeout and the Sweed Hollow Café tried to do takeout but it wasn’t successful.

So I decided to see what spots were closed for sit-down eating, but were offering takeout or even curbside which means they will bring food out. Here are some of those participating. Be sure to call to see if things have changed by the time you read this and what hours they will be open. I have included phone numbers. Most of them want cash or card and some won’t take checks. Some of them have delivery by various services as well.

East Side Pizzeria at 1050 Payne Ave has always delivered to homes but will add curb service as well. Phone is 651-776-7499.

Magnolia’s, 1081 Payne, has a small staff now and will only do takeout. Full menu. You can come inside but not sit down and no checks. Check with them at 774-3333.

Yarussio Bros Italian Restaurant at 635 Payne Avenue requires a phone call at 651-776-4848 and you can pick up later between 11:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Bruson’s Pub at 956 Payne Avenue will take orders from 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for parking lot pick-ups.

Manana Restaurant at 798 E. Seventh Street. Come in front but not full inside. Call first. Choose from on-line menu You can also have Bite Squad deliver. Phone 651-792-8482.

Gold Line Bus Rapid Transit project clears environmental reviews

Metro Transit

The METRO Gold Line Bus Rapid Transit (BRT) project has cleared all environmental review requirements. This assures the project can continue design and engineering without additional environmental work.

On March 5, the Federal Highway Administration completed its review of the Gold Line environmental assessment and supporting documents, including the Federal Transit Administration’s environmental decision document published in January 2020. The Federal Highway Administration found no significant impacts on the environment as it relates to potential project impacts on Interstate 94 and I-694.

Following the Federal Transit Administration’s and Federal Highway Administration’s decisions, the Metropolitan Council issued a negative declaration of environmental impact on March 25. This document concludes that additional environmental work is not required for the Gold Line project because it is not expected to have significant impacts on the environment.

The Gold Line Bus Rapid Transit project is a bus line that will operate primarily within bus-only lanes and will connect the Green Line Light Rail system in downtown Saint Paul with Woodbury. It will run through Dayton’s Bluff and continue east to Sun Ray, 3M in Maplewood, Landfall and Oakdale. It will be built north of Interstate 94 at street level, not along the freeway itself. In Dayton’s Bluff, it will travel on a reconstructed Hudson Road.
Volunteer at Storehouse Grocers

Carl Johnson
Faith City Church

We need your help in this season amid COVID-19 closures. We need you to help us feed and minister specifically to the poor. We need help to get catered food. I am being truthful. Storehouse Grocers needs your help as well. We are a small grocery that is facing a huge issue to stay open when distributors can’t give us food. Opening up new accounts in this season is very hard. If you would like to specifically help with the Grocery Store in this season please email carl@storehousegrocers.com. In March alone, we were able to feed 400 people with your help! We are still going forward.

Mounds Park United Methodist Church

In the past several issues, Mounds Park United Methodist Church was asking for teams of teen and adult volunteers for the week of June 15 through 19 to work with Dayton’s Bluff home owners and non-profits on improvement projects to their properties. Sadly, it was decided that all events and the project will be canceled. Joan Decker, who works at the church, said, “We have canceled all of our events at this time. I know we had promoted our annual Urban CROSS Project in June 2020. We have canceled that but plan to come back in 2021 stronger than ever. As stated above, all activities and events are canceled until further notice.

Proudly Serving Dayton’s Bluff
The Loneliness Pandemic

Clara Martin
Special to the Forum

Loneliness had been called an epidemic in our country long before COVID-19 came along. Mental health professionals have long treated loneliness as the health crisis it is. Now, certainly, with more people staying home, sheltering in place, and filling the limited ICU beds without the luxury of a visit from a loved one, loneliness is bound to be an even larger concern.

While isolation for periods of time can be harmful, many people experience loneliness even when they’re with other people. This can happen in a marriage or partnership when needs for communication are not being met, when one partner is feeling ignored or left out or feeling invisible. Loneliness can happen to a single parent who is overwhelmed with daily responsibilities and has nothing to fill up the empty spaces but the caphony and demands of children. The loneliness in this case is complicated by the frustration of no meaningful aline time. In these cases, the single parent can build up resentment and anger. This is a kind of lowliness that fester and can cause health issues beyond the psychological.

Pearsall writes: “Isolation is not the absence of people around us; it is the feeling of being lonely and disconnected, somehow left outside the whole, even when we are among others. Without the nourishment of social support, a lonely heart hardens and breaks. Like an un-watered flower, it literally atrophies and dies.”

Teachers may recognize loneliness in their students in the classroom. Upon further investigation, the teacher may learn that these students go home to an empty house, perhaps, both parents are working; or, there is one parent only, or there is an abusive parent, or lack of love and attention. Whatever the problem, it is important to identify the lonely student and seek help in order to assure this student can perform in school and learn to the fullest potential. Mandatory reporting isn’t limited to black and blue marks. When a child is hurting, grades plummet, classroom participation doesn’t happen and friendships don’t form. It is the wise and observant teacher who can recognize the signs and help.

Children who feel lonely often experience poor peer relationships and therefore express more loneliness than peers with friends. They often feel excluded—a feeling that can be damaging to their self-esteem. In addition, they may experience feelings of sadness, fear, and hopelessness, and consequently, lonely children may miss out on many opportunities to interact with their peers and to learn important lifelong skills. Given the importance placed on the benefits of peer interactions and friendships children’s development, this potential lack of interaction raises many concerns for teachers who work with young children. Peer relations matter to children, and lonely children place as much importance on them as do other children. Furthermore, early childhood experiences that contribute to loneliness may predict loneliness during adult life (Ramakrishnan, 1991).

About one-third of US adults age 45 and older report feeling lonely. While the findings that 35 percent of midlife and older adults are lonely is unchanged from 2010, the population of lonely people over age 45 has grown by 5 million, from 42.6 million to 47.8 million, in the past eight years. (AARP)

Geriatrician Carla Perissinotto was one of the first to publish in the medical literature about the health threats associated with loneliness. She followed 1,600 people out of a national Health and Retirement Study, over 15 years, to see whether loneliness poses a risk to independence and mortality. It does: Feeling lonely results in a 60 percent increased risk of functional decline and a 45 percent greater risk of death.

It’s difficult to feel lonely being alone. After all, who really cares? Who wants to hear that answer when we ask someone how they are doing? We wouldn’t know what to do with that response and it might make us feel impotent when put on the spot, not knowing how to respond. Thus, we’ve all learned to simply say “we’re fine and leave it at that. We walk away saying to ourselves, “Why bother? Nobody can fix it or make a difference. I just have to learn to live with it.”

Yet connecting with others in a social setting can have immediate effects on our well-being. Connecting with someone else and having even a brief conversation raises our spirits and lifts our mood. Studies show that connectedness affects our blood pressure and increases longevity. “Unity feels good because it is good for you,” Pearsall writes. During this current pandemic, people are finding creative ways to connect. Some neighborhoods are ringing bells at a certain hour; while others are singing from their balconies. New apps are being created to virtually connect people to celebrate birthdays, have dance parties, keep meetings going, have church services, and enjoy music. There is proven value in our togetherness.

Parents of grown children know the immense pleasure of having their family together after years of being away. They just miss them. To have an empty nest isn’t the relief they thought it would be. Instead, they are left with solitude and loneliness, wishing they could have some of those crazy and raucous times back. Sure, adult children come back for visits, but when the holiday visit is over, and the children and grandchildren walk out the door to return home, again the parent (s) are left with the emptiness.

We matter to each other. Our presence in each other’s lives is the most important and vital role we play as human beings. We help each other by just being together. It’s the conversation, the hugs, the support and the love that keep us going and keep us healthy.

Loneliness is all around us and we have the magical power of lightening someone’s day and making that person feel special and cared about. Especially during this time of COVID-19 let’s make that phone call. Let’s leave a little something at someone’s door. Let’s reach out and get out of our own little world and consider someone who might need to hear your voice today. Who knows? You might be saving a life.

Book Review

The Vanishing
by Wendy Webb

Over the past few months I have been devouring ghost story novels. I was a bit skeptical at first, being that it was a bit hard to imagine some of these spooky tales. However, I was wrong. It’s almost creepier to read a ghost story than to watch one in a movie or television because you’re the one who has to imagine up these ghouls and oftentimes violent tales.

I recently read Minnesota native Wendy Webb’s The Vanishing. It’s a novel that came out about the mysterious Sinclair family. While it flowed nicely as a story, it lagged in some areas. It wasn’t until I was about halfway through the book that it finally started making sense and the truth finally came out about the mysterious Sinclair family.

The main character, Julia Bishop, finds herself with no money after her husband died. A stranger comes to her door and invites her to the Sinclair mansion in Duluth to watch over this stranger’s mother as her caregiver.

Throughout the first couple weeks living in the mansion, Julia finds herself feeling as though she’s been there before and has occasional flashbacks to when she was young, but immediately pushes it out of her mind. It turns out she was related to a spiritual medium who was there decades before she was born. I will stop there, I don’t want to spoil the rest!

Overall, it was a great book. Even though it was kind of slow in parts, the last page of the entire book is what makes you go, “wow!” It was such a twisted ending that I didn’t realize I was holding my breath until I read the last sentence. I still think about that ending. This is what makes Wendy Webb truly an amazing author. It is certainly worth the read!

Happenings in May

Temperance Brennan

Special to the Forum

I am staying at home because of the pandemic and foregoing any of my usual forays to foreign lands to do my field work as an anthropologist. May is an interesting month since there are three well known holidays in the United States—Mothers Day, on the last Sunday, Memorial Day, on the first Monday, and the last Monday in the month to remember our veterans who died while serving in the military, and the first of May, which is mostly known. Many countries see it as International Worker's Day since the 1880s. Other celebrations that look at it as the rites of spring.

There used to be children who looked forward to wrapping May poles. Did you participate? I remember as an elementary school student making May baskets, putting in some flowers and candy and sneaking up on front porches of friends or classmates, ringing the bell or knocking and quickly running away. Did any of you do the same?

Maybe I should write a paper concerning the disappearance of disappointing children’s activities. Maybe you can share some of holidays with the out-of-school students.

May 5: Arrival Day: The holiday commemorates the first arrival of indentured laborers from India into Goyana in 1838 to work in sugar plantations. It is a South American country and it is English speaking. Their descendants of the arriving workers today comprise 44 percent of their population.

May 10: Constitution Day: The Federation of Micronesia comprises 607 islands, that are northwest of New Guinea and east of the Philippines. Micronesia consists of three states Yap, Pohnpei, Kosrae, and Chuuk. It was administered by the USA after WWII. The states ratified a new constitution in 1979 to become the Federated States of Micronesia.

May 21: Independence Day: If her was the day in 2006 when Montenegro voted for independence from Serbia. This was not the first time it had been its own country. It was the first nation to emerge out of the crumbling Ottoman Empire in the 1700s. After World War I, it was annexed by Serbia, and then became part of Yugoslavia when that nation was formed in 1929.

May 23: Labor Day in Jamaica: A country in the West Indies in the Caribbean Sea south of Cuba, commemorates a labor rebellion in 1938. It was once also called Empire Day, but this was dropped when the country gained independence from the British in 1962. However, they remain a part of the Commonwealth. It is a day to do volunteering to help solidify the spirit of national unity.

May 27: Children's Day in Nigeria: Originally called the Federal Republic of Nigeria, is an annual holiday for the country on the western coast of Africa where hundreds of languages are spoken. It is celebrated by governmental and non-governmental organizations and students have no school.

May 29: Democracy Day: After gaining independence in 1960 from Great Britain, Nigeria fell prey to a civil war and a military coup. The country was briefly restored from 1979 to 1983, but then the country was ruled by a series of military juntas. In 1999, the hand over to civil rule took place and elections were held and a former general became president.

Some St. Paul Historic Happenings in May

Steve Trimble

Forum Staff

Once again, here are some of the short pieces that I wrote in the past for a book that never materialized. They are around 200 words and the aim was to have an event for every day in the year in a volume that might be titled A Day in the Life of St. Paul.

What do you think—would you want to read or possibly buy such an item?

Cultural Cavalcade: The First Festival of Nations, originally known as The Folk Festival, began on May 6, 1932. It was the idea of Alice Sickels, executive secretary of the International Institute. She conceived of a council of women from eighteen different ethnic back- grounds and an invitation was extended to all ethnic groups that might be interested in participating. The first event was held in the St. Paul YMCA. After Sickels visited Europe to explore museums and villages, she renamed the event the Festival of Nations and decided to have it every three years. She felt that its music, dancing, foods, and arts and crafts reinforced the values of diversity in American culture.

A central feature of the Festival of Nations became the “International Village,” in which each ethnic group or nationality showcases its national traditions, folklore, and customs, often selling crafts and, traditional food. The event became an annual gathering in 1979 and is the largest running multicultural festival in Minnesota.

As the event grew, it moved to larger spaces and most recently has been held at St. Paul’s River Centre. The goal of the Festival of Nations is still to provide “the opportunity to develop an appreciation, rather than just a tolerance of the culture of others.”

Welcome Home!: On May 8, 1919 St. Paul crowds welcomed the 151st U.S. Field Artillery home after their service in France during WWI. Mayor Hodgson welcomed the soldiers at the Arch. According to the Pioneer Press, around 40,000 people met them at the depot with “mighty cheers and glistening tears” and “a mother, gray of hair and unsteady of step ran across the uncertain footing of the railroad tracks” to see her son. An estimated 200,000 people then watched the ensuing parade from the Capitol to Smith Avenue. As the regiment passed before the crowds on the Capitol slope, 500 members of the St. Paul Municipal Chorus started singing patriotic songs. Small singing choruses were scattered among the crowds all along the line of march.

Every window was packed with spectators who tossed confetti and pieces of paper from windows. Trucks and wagons were converted into impromptu receiving stands. The band played through a triumphal Victory Arch at Sixth and Wabasha. As the Minnesota artillerymen approached the arch the colonel ordered “to halt and let the 800 wounded through first.” The crowd went wild. After the parade, the various units were served dinners at clubs, hotels, cafes, and at the St. Paul Hotel.

“Hearbreak Hotel”: Elvis Presley performed two shows in the Cities on May 13, 1956. The 2:00 show at the St. Paul Auditorium drew only 800 fans. Elvis wore a Kelly-green jacket over his black shirt and pants when he appeared on stage. After the first few words of his hit song “Hearbreak Hotel,” came out of his mouth the noise of the crowd drowned out the mu- sic and only the beat carried over the speaker system. Minneapolis Tribune writer Will Jones said “Presley, young bomb-and-grid artist, turned a rainy Sunday afternoon into an orgy of squealing in St. Paul auditorium... It was impossible to hear him sing” as he “faced a sea of empty seats.” Pop culture critic Bill Diehl was unimpressed. “On stage Elvis, far from being a rock and roller, seemed to lose his way. He wrote in his column, “Your gyrations were straight from strip-tease alley. Happily, you did leave your clothes on.” After the concert was over a mob of ex- cited girls tried to get at their idol.

The police had to form a flying wedge to take Pres- ley to a waiting car. However, the crowd managed to break through and as the rock and roller made his getaway the Kelly-green coat was half torn off.

Women’s History: The Thursday Club of Saint Paul was formed on May 14, 1894 to provide a forum for young women to study together. Carrie Haskins, an instructor at the Baldwin Seminary, served as its di- rector until 1909, when she was made honorary presi- dent. Their first meeting was held on October 4, 1894 with a total of twenty-five charter members. A year later the membership had risen to over a hundred. As the name implied, the monthly meetings were al- ways on a Thursday. Typical programs included a pa- per presented by the “essayist of the day” on a select- ed topic. In later years guest speakers were welcomed on programs. The club’s first course of study focused on the poets of the 19th century. The group later explored American history, philanthropy, music, drama, travel, American art, civics, and current topics. Discussions met in addition to the regular meetings.

The Thursday Club also had a long tradition of civic and philanthropic charity such as the planting of 14,000 fruit trees by schoolchildren in various parks. Their projects included a support of the St. Paul Public Library, Neighborhood House, the Free Medical Dispensary, and the Red Cross. During the Second World War the club supported war relief organizations.
East Side Eating – Trimble’s Taste Trek

Forum contributor Steve Trimble has set out to eat at every locally-owned, sit-down restaurant on the East Side. He hopes to get the word out to Dayton’s Bluff about the eating options here on our side of town.

There are more restaurants than there is room for in the monthly paper, but at least 60 may now be found online at dayton bluff district forum.org. Click on “East Side Eating” at the top of the home page. Steve Trimble can be reached at dayton bluff district forum@gmail.com.

I have a problem. As you may know, I try to keep up with new restaurants on the East Side and put them in the Forum. Right now, there are a few new businesses but they are closed for sit-down service so I can’t get in to look them over and have a dish or two. There are quite a few places I visited a few years ago that didn’t make it into the Forum, so until the Governor’s order stays in place I will offer a few older pieces and try to update them through their websites.

Ari’s Best Steakhouse

My son, who now lives in Northeast Minneapolis, came to visit me on this day. I often treat him to dinner so I decided to make sure Tom became part of the Trimble Taste Trek. He decided that beef would be a nice change so we headed for Ari’s Best Steak House, the last of its kind on the East Side. The restaurant was started in 1973 by a Greek family, who have been frequent owners of such establishments in the Twin Cities. The man still owns the establishment, but the current main cook on the day we came was a Serbian from Sarajevo. There were around fifteen comfortable booths and over ten tables and many more places to sit in a large back room with numerous tables. It is clean and well lit, with patriotic pictures and scenes from Greece on the walls. Even though its name says it’s a steak house, they have other things including chicken, gyros, shrimp baskets, pork chops and, barbecue ribs.

You order at the front of a cafeteria-like counter, tell them how you want your meat cooked—sorry, no vegetarian entrees—make your own salad, order a soft drink if you want and/or select a piece of pie or pudding and then pay the cashier. You seat yourself and they will bring the beef along with a baked potato and a large piece of “Texas Toast” with any entree. I decided to have medium sized sirloin. As usual, I took some home in a Styrofoam container. These days steak is quite expensive, so I didn’t want to be wasteful. There is a separate kid’s menu with reasonably priced burgers, chicken tenders, cheeseburgers, and grilled cheese sandwiches. Steakhouse specials that change often are available for lunch from 11:00 a.m.—2:00 p.m., which cost $5.99 at the time this was written four years ago.

The yellow banner in the window states that you may call and do order pick up.
