The Capital City Wind Ensemble Wants You

Greg Cosimini

There is a new touch of class in the Dayton’s Bluff Neighborhood. The Capital City Wind Ensemble (CCWE) is now holding their weekly rehearsals at Mounds Park United Methodist Church. The CCWE was founded in 2002 at the request of then Mayor Randy Kelly. It began as a city employee band that was formed and directed by Max Metzger, who had a long history of leading local vocal and instrumental ensembles. The CCWE played at many city events, both downtown and in city parks. At its peak, the CCWE had 24 members. Like so many other organizations, the CCWE has been a victim of aging membership and the COVID-19 pandemic. Most of its members are retired and no longer work for the city. Others are gone for a variety of reasons, leaving the longer work for the city. There are no scheduled events at the present time, but a member would be expected to attend rehearsals once a week. These are held at Mounds Park United Methodist Church, 1049 Euclid St., at noon for one hour each Thursday. This is strictly a volunteer organization. There is no compensation.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the CCWE should visit their website at squnsccwe.com or contact Mary Livingston at livingstonmusic@q.com or at 651-331-1089.

Adopt a Family in Need This Holiday Season

Ramsey County

Many families struggle daily to afford food, clothes, or a place to sleep. It is no surprise that these families go without presents and special meals during the holiday season. To help ensure more families in our community thrive during this time of year, the Family Sponsorship Program matches community sponsors with Ramsey County families in need.

Families, individuals, groups, and workplaces are invited to sponsor a family this holiday season. The Family Sponsorship Program is a little different than other holiday giving opportunities because it is not simply a cash donation program. Sponsors get the opportunity to purchase, shop, and wrap gifts for their matched family.

The Family Sponsorship Program serves families who are receiving Ramsey County social services and are identified by social workers as needing extra help with food and gifts during the holiday season. Children in these families have often experienced varying degrees of abuse or neglect, and have developmental or other disabilities. Some families are refugees, while others are single parents or grandparents just getting by to provide necessities for the children in their care.

Sponsors make a commitment to provide a family with at least: One clothing item per child, one toy per child, one parent gift, and one grocery gift certificate for the family.

A budget of $30 to $50 per family member is recommended, plus an additional $15 per person for food for a holiday meal. Committed sponsors will be assigned a family in mid-November, based on the estimated number of participants. Social workers provide sponsors with the first names, ages, and wish list for everyone in the family assigned to them. Gifts are collected by social workers and then delivered to the families.

If you are interested in sponsoring a family during the upcoming holiday season, fill out a sponsorship form or contact Luna Wright at 651-266-7639 by Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The cost of the sponsorship is tax deductible to the extent permitted by law. Donation receipts for tax purposes can be provided upon request.

Recipe
Congressman Bruce Vento’s Spicy Italian Sandwiches

Ingredients:
-2 ½ C. bread crumbs
-1 ½ teaspoon parsley
-1/4 C. Romano cheese
-1 ½ teaspoon basil
-2 small garlic cloves
-1 teaspoon salt
-1 tablespoon Hot red pepper
-1/2 pepper
-2 lg. Eggs or 3 small eggs

Directions:
Mix together and add milk until mixture is the consistency of moist dressing. Then add 4 pounds of ground beef to the above and mix thoroughly, preferably with your hands. Make into patties and fry in olive oil until browned (Note: these patties burn easily so watch carefully and keep adding oil).

After browning, place the patties in the following sauce.

In a large greased kettle or Dutch oven, add the following: 2 large cans tomato juice, 1 large can of tomato puree, and a 12-ounce can of tomato paste. Simmer the patties in the sauce for about an hour.

Watch carefully as the patties tend to stick to the bottom of the pan. Serve on Italian bread.

Note: Roma Bakery is no longer in business. If you’d like to submit your favorite recipe, please send it to: daytonsbldistrictforum@gmail.com. Photo provided by the Minnesota Historical Society.

Kids Corner

Suggested Titles by Dayton's Bluff Library Staff

Thanksgiving was declared a federal holiday in 1663 by President Lincoln to create a day to remember blessings during the difficult times of the American Civil War. Many legends have formed about the holiday, some of which have roots in the first Thanksgiving while many others have evolved over time. It is important to note that Thanksgiving is not a day of celebration for everyone but can be a reminder of what has been lost or taken away. Here are a few books to learn more about this complicated holiday.

In this Wampanoag story told in a Native tradition, two kids from the Mashpee Wampanoag tribe learn the story of Weëchumun (corn) and the first Thanksgiving. The authors of this picture book treat the Native American people's past, present, and future. Written by 12 different youth, it shares a wide style of writing and voices.

This picture book highlights Anishinaabemowin words along with their cultural connections as passed down from the author's Ojibway ancestors. "Knowing our culture means knowing who we are. When we know who we are, we can walk in a good way.”

Sen. Foung Hawj Says Key State Panel Advances His Task Force To Clean Up Pig’s Eye Landfill on St. Paul’s East Side

Marc Kimbrell

Senator Foung Hawj said that a key State environmental and natural resources panel has unanimously approved moving ahead with establishing a task force to clean-up the Pig’s Eye Landfill on St. Paul’s East Side, a project that Sen. Hawj pushed through the State Legislature this year.

Sen. Hawj said the Legislative-Citizen Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCCMR) voted unanimously to advance the project and in the coming months will hire a task force coordinator, who will then lead the task force efforts to clean up the harmful contaminants in the landfill that are leaking into nearby waterways, including the Mississippi River, and threaten the people and wildlife in the area.

“I am very pleased that the LCCMR has unanimously approved this important task force so that we can get to work on cleaning up and restoring the Pig’s Eye Landfill,” said Sen. Hawj. "For far too long, high levels of pollutants at the landfill — including metals, mercury and PFAS/PFOs — have impacted wildlife and threatened downstream communities that rely on the Mississippi River for their water supply. I am pleased that the task force is moving forward so that in the coming years, the community can turn it into a park that can be enjoyed by citizens.”

Sen. Hawj, whose legislation to establish the task force was signed into law by Governor Walz in May, said once the coordinator is hired in October, the task force will be officially established. It will be made up of representatives from city, county, state and federal agencies and other stakeholders who will have the resources to make the landfill cleanup a reality.

Under the new law, the task force began work by October 2022 and reports annually on the task force’s work, with a final report due February 2026.

Happy the Turtle, Happy Am I

It Takes a Village

Sage Holben

A neighbor texted me to ask if I could take a “found” turtle to the Roseville Wildlife Rehab Center. Another neighbor had found the turtle on the sidewalk near my Little Free Library on Bates. My neighbor delivered the turtle to me and as I walked past my resting cat to place the turtle in a tall pail, I stopped to introduce curious Tommy to this odd creature. Tommy barely budged. He lifted his head a bit toward Turtle, and with empathetic eyes, seemed to assure the turtle, you’ll find a home.

Minutes later, Turtle nestled in the bucket. Turtle and I set out to get his head nick and general health checked out. Two staff members welcomed us and checked Turtle’s health. His head nick was deemed superficial and required no medication. Perfectly healthy and eager to go, was the assessment, and it was a female turtle. They informed me that this was turtle migrating season and turtles, having their own GPS monitors, know exactly where they need or want to go. “Take her back to where she was found and she will find her way to water” was the advice. I explained there wasn’t any pond, lake, river that she could have safely come from or be headed. I gave my address as another staff member came into the area and introduced himself. “Hi, I’m your neighbor, Scott. I live up the street from you.” He agreed with what I had said about the lack of water and the presence of several high-traffic streets and an expressway. Scott suggested that a kid probably had picked up “Happy” (as Scott named our turtle) from Wisconsin, neighborhood booya was of ill-fated humor — My neighbor who is a self-described “animal professional” did not seem amused when I noted that when I lived in Green Bay and De Pere, Wisconsin, neighborhood booya was often made with turtle meat from the area creeks and river.

Should We Have a Printed Dayton's Bluff Hall of Fame Booklet?

G.B. LeRoy

Lots of schools and other groups have their own "halls of fame" and sometimes photos and information are put on their walls. But did you know that there is a Dayton's Bluff Hall of Fame? There is no place to go to where you can see it. It is a virtual one that is on the Forum's website. Here are a few examples of the people that have been honored:

Emily Borth: Emily Borth was a long-time Girl Scout Troop Leader and supporter of her Dayton's Bluff neighborhood. Living at 1109 Burns Avenue, she became the leader of Girl Scout Troop #5 at Mounds Park Elementary in 1932. She and her husband Arthur had no children of their own, but Emily set out to nurture as many children as possible. She had a gift for being there for the girls. She organized field trips to businesses, fire stations, and a police department, where troop members were fingerprinted. They took train trips, made place mats for hospitalized patients, and helped to collect dolls for less fortunate children. There were also trips to overnight cabins in Forest Lake.

For 32 years, Borth devoted much of her time to the ideals of Girl Scouting. Eamon a Búrc, a seanachí (an Irish storyteller), was born into an Irish-speaking household in Carna, County Galway, Ireland. The family emigrated to Graceville, Minnesota, with the help of Archbishop John Ireland. After a brutal winter and an eviction in 1880, they resettled in "Connemara Patch," a section of the city so named because many Irish immigrants lived along Phalen Creek south of East Seventh Street.

Eamon and his father went to work for J. J. Hill's Great Northern Railway. After losing a leg in a work-related accident, Eamon returned to Ireland and became a tailor. In 1935, the Irish Folklore Commission recorded his repertoire of legends and folk poetry and the transcription filled more than 2,000 pages. According to one source, Búrc "Was perhaps the finest storyteller collected from in the Twentieth Century."

Antonette Carbone (Nana) Carbone: Alfonso and Antoinette Carbone, who came to St. Paul from Italy, started a small grocery/confection shop with "near beer" during Prohibition. When her husband died in 1954 Antonette, living at 698 East Fourth Street, gathered traditional recipes from the south of Italy and with the help of her children, opened what is considered to be St. Paul's first pizzeria at 680 East Seventh Street. Nana died in 1974, but her children took over and the business prospered and expanded. Carbone's is still in family hands and remains a chain with 30 locations in Minnesota and a few in Wisconsin and Montana.

Do you think there should be a booklet printed with the information about the people from our neighborhood? Do you have any ideas for who should be included? If you do, please contact the Forum newspaper at daytonsbluffdistrictforum@gmail.com.

Coming Home to Swede Hollow

Karin DuPaul

Coming Home to Swede Hollow was an event that was held on October 1 in Swede Hollow Park. It was a very nice fall day and a successful event. Music was by John Knowles, the "smiling cowboy". Visitors walking along the Bruce Vento Regional Trail got to see the new signage that celebrates the people who came to Saint Paul and made the lovely valley their first home in the city. First the Swedish, then the Italians, and then the Mexicans settled in Swede Hollow along with people from other countries.

At the Swede Hollow history tent we had a number of former Swede Hollow residents including Thelma Stone and Lois Rodriguez who lived in the hollow years ago and who enjoy sharing their memories of life in the peaceful valley that is now Swede Hollow Park.

Good food was from Karibu Grocery and Deli, a restaurant at the corner of Payne and East Minnehaha Aves.

Girls Scouts in uniform, dated 1937.

On October 8, led by Kathy Sidles, the Friends of Swede Hollow and the Saint Paul Audubon hosted a BirdUp! in Swede Hollow Park.
The Gold Line is Coming and Our Trees are Going
Greg Cosimini

Anyone who has recently driven on Hudson Road between Forest St. and Johnson Parkway may have noticed something new, or more accurately, the absence of something. That something being trees. All the trees on both sides of Hudson Road, not just near the freeway noise barrier, have been removed in preparation for Gold Line Bus Rapid Transit roadway construction which will begin next year.

The Gold Line is a 10-mile dedicated bus roadway which will provide easy access between downtown Saint Paul and suburbs of Maplewood, Landfall, Oakdale and Woodbury. It will pass through Dayton’s Bluff and the rest of the East Side to the east of Johnson Parkway along the north side of the freeway noise barrier.

According to the October 14 newsletter from the Metropolitan Council, it is an update for work in progress or planned for the next few months on the East Side:

“Crews continue site preparations by removing fencing, clearing trees, and grading north of I-94 between Johnson Parkway and the Etna Street Station site (near the intersection of Hudson Road and Old Hudson Road).

“Expect lane closures and temporary bypass lanes on the southbound Highway 61 on-ramp and on the westbound I-94 off-ramp to Etna Street. Expect shoulder closures on the northbound Highway 61 off-ramp, and the eastbound I-94 on-ramp. Crews in this area continue by building up earth for bridge abutment work.

“Site preparations, including tree clearing, continues throughout the project. “Next week, crews will begin installing sheeting and piling near the Etna Street Station site. Anticipate increased construction noise and vibration in the area. Following sheeting and piling, crews will begin to construct bridge abutments and piers. A vibration monitoring system will be installed at various locations to monitor construction vibrations.

“Beginning October 24, crews will be moving brush, dirt and topsoil using Hudson Road between Johnson Parkway and Kellogg Boulevard.”

For more information on the Gold Line Project and to subscribe to the Gold Line Project Upgrade Newsletter, visit metro-transit.org/gold-line-construction.

November Historical Events in St. Paul
Steve Trumble

November 3, 1872: Artist Carl Bohnen was born in Pennsylvania on this day, but was raised in Meyers Grove, a small German community in St. Croix County. Bohnen was artistic as a child, and often wrote on his home’s walls with coal. By age 14 he began drawing portraits. He received his first form of art training at St. John’s University in Minnesota.

Bohnen turned to paint the landscape. However, he re-entrusted to be captured uncannily in the newspapers.

Bohnen found himself under suspicion for having been in Germany and supposedly not being pro-American enough. He left to carry on in Chicago. However, he returned to paint the portraits of seven Minnesota Historical Society Governors that were hung in the State Capitol.

November 5, 1991: Choua Lee was elected to the St. Paul School Board on this day. The 23-year-old was the first Hmong person to ever be elected to public office in the United States. She was born on July 7, 1969, in Laos. Later the family moved to Minnesota to find a better place where they could raise their children.

November 12, 1777: Steve Carter’s Eden is the first documented performance at the Penumbra Theatre located in the 1977-78 season of the Penumbra Theatre Company. Founded in 1976 by Lou Bellamy who wanted to have a forum for African-American voices in the Twin City’s theater community. He is known for producing all of the works of Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright August Wilson.

“Steve’s story was about telling that there were not enough African-Americans at that time that would have the breadth or richness of the culture to be capable of,” Bellamy said. “I wanted a place where those more-complex portraits of African-Americans could be told.”

He described as a “real adherence and concentration on the nuances, musicality, general language and culture of African-Americans.” Penumbra quickly had a loyal following in their setting inside the Martin Luther King Center. They launched the career of many respected playwrights, including two-time Pulitzer Prize winner August Wilson whose Jitney and Fences were premiered there.

The Penumbra Theatre Company was one of three professional African-American theaters in the nation to offer full seasons of performances. In 2017, Bellamy handed the artistic director to his daughter Sarah Bellamy whom he knew would carry on with ground-breaking productions.

November 17, 1927: On this day St. Paul home. When she ran for office, “she didn’t just do it the way I felt it needed to be done,” recalled Judge Michael DeCourcy.

It was a sizeable place that was well lighted and clean. There were five tables that would seat four and a large table for six or more. If you prefer booths, there are four of them. The tables also had little plants on them. There are scattered decorations around as well as a large mural on the east wall.

You order at a counter on the north side of the building, and it has color photos of most of the menu. The south wall is full of windows. Along the west wall is their bakery works. Next to the counter is a glass fronted container of small bakery items as well as fancy birthday and wedding cakes.

There was a lot of people sitting at two tables and a booth when I was there but quite a few were coming in for doing take out. The owners and workers are a mixture of Latino from Guatemala. I may not be able to explain as well as usual when I write descriptions of the food because the menu is almost exclusively in Spanish and none of the internet postings were very helpful.

I was able to translate some of the menu items. Here goes: The menu has 11 different antojitos. The name of a large group of a family of foods known as antojitos that in English means “little craving.” It refers to street snacks or appetizers. They’re usually small bites intended before the big meal or as a late-night bite after a few drinks. A few are small tamales, Enchiladas Guatemaltecas, Enchiladas Mexicanas and Chuchitos, a traditional Guatemalan-style of tamales. The first word in the name means “little dog.”

Another group is tortas, a sort of Mexican sandwich that is served on a soft roll and filled with meat, sauce, and various toppings such as crema, avocado, salsa, and iceberg lettuce. Two them are torta cubana and a torta regular. Of course, there are several kinds of tacos that the restaurant describes as Mexican street tacos with one choice of meat. Four kinds including tacos dorados a rolled taco filled with meat and crispy or deep-fried and tacos guatemaltecos. Burritos are flour tortilla with beans, rice and a choice of meat and a few are on the menu.

One offering from El Salvador are pupusas and there are a few different kinds. There are several soups featuring caldo de gallina (chicken soup), menado, a traditional soup using a cow’s stomach in a red chili pepper base and caldo de pata or duck broth. Since they open early, they offer breakfast burritos breakfast tacos, desayuno (breakfast) chapin with three eggs and beans, fried plantain and desayuno campestre with avocado.

There are several different shrimp dishes and one tilapia. The desserts offerings include tamal de fruta sweet fried plantanos that are sweet fried plantain. There is even a short children’s menu. The choices are a quesadilla, a hamburger, a cheese quesadilla or a pupusa. All of them include fries. I opted for a burrito with portions that were so large I took half home. They have no beer or other liquors, but they have hop and Mexican Jarrito. But they also had a Sanga Senorial, that is a sparkling non-alcohol beverage that I added to my order.

By the way, you get your food from a pickup window in the wall. They call out your order. Near the window they have a coffee urn. They also have Spanish background music going all the time and there is a TV behind the order counter. El Quetzal takes cash and cards but no checks at this time. They offer dine in, take out, and will cater their food. Plenty of parking in the strip mall lot.

Dear Reader,

The Dayton’s Bluff District Forum has been a volunteer-run newspaper since the 1980s and has always operated on a minimal budget. Each issue costs around $1,000 to produce per month. We have found a new printer and have adjusted the cost to print each month.

For the past three years we have been soliciting donations through our Friends of the Forum program. Thanks to the donations from readers like you, we have been able to keep the paper up and running. If you value this community source of information, please consider filling out the form below. Any amount is appreciated; you may also make memorial donations, or include the Forum in your legacy planning. If you have been our Friend in the past, please consider making a donation in 2022. Our goal for 2022 is $5,000; will you help us reach our goal in 2022?
